

Human Rights Report (1 – 16 June 2018)

1. Summary of Violations.

In the period under review 1 – 16 June 2018, Heal Zimbabwe recorded a total of 60 human rights violations across 20 districts. The recorded human rights violations were clustered in six categories that include intimidation, assault, partisan distribution of food aid, forced participation to political activities, disruption of political gatherings and destruction of campaign material. Intimidation continues to record the highest number of human rights violations with 78.33% (47 cases) followed by assault which recorded 10% (6 cases). Forced participation in political activities, disruption of political gatherings and partisan distribution of food aid recorded 3.33% (2 cases) each. Destruction of campaign materials recorded the least number of violations with 1.66% (1 case). Political developments contributing to these violations include (i) the Presidential proclamation of elections and rerun dates (ii) MDC-T primary elections, (iii) political party rallies (ruling and opposition) (iv) ZANU PF community structures meetings, (v) BVR system and (vi) food handouts from the Department of Social Welfare.

We note that intimidation remains the major human rights violation used by most perpetrators across the country. A total of 47 cases of intimidation were recorded in this report, one case higher than in the previous report where 46 cases were recorded. The continuous domination of intimidation is worrying as it directly affects peaceful coexistence amongst citizens and free participation in democratic processes ahead of the forthcoming general elections. Most forms of intimidation observed include direct threats of past electoral violence (largely the 2008 rerun violence) which left a trail of destruction as people lost lives, some injured, maimed and property seized or destroyed. Other threats include threats of evictions, seizure of property and withdrawal of food aid and inputs. Heal Zimbabwe further observed that whilst threats of past violence continue to be issued, another emerging form of intimidation followed the military takeover of November 2017. Identified perpetrators issues threats of violence from soldiers on all who oppose the ruling ZANU PF party. This threat is largely issued by ZANU PF leaders, war veterans and traditional leaders.

Heal Zimbabwe observed that in this reporting period most victims were both ruling and opposition party supporters and ordinary community members. In view the observed cases, Heal Zimbabwe calls for peace and tolerance. We reiterate that intimidation leads to a fearful society and hinder efforts towards peace, social cohesion and free participation in democratic processes.

Nature of Violations Recorded

3. Distribution of Violations by District

The above chart summarises the distribution of the recorded 60 human rights violations across the 20 Districts. In this report four districts that include Bikita, Buhera, Nyanga and Muzarabani recorded the highest number of human rights violations with 6 cases each, 5 cases short compared to the previous week where Bikita district recorded 11 cases. The continued political activities such as political meetings, and rallies influenced the high number of human rights cases in these districts. The increasing number in the above mentioned districts clearly portrays the rising political temperatures as the nation approaches the general elections. Bikita, Muzarabani, Buhera and Mt Darwin were some of the districts that experienced massive human rights violations in the past 2008 elections; as such an increase in human rights violations invokes brutal memories of past violence and further jeopardizes the holding of free, peaceful and credible elections.

4. Distribution of Violations by Province

The chart above shows the recorded human rights violations according to provinces. Heal Zimbabwe observed that the recorded human rights violations occurred in 7 provinces. The provinces include Masvingo, Manicaland, Mashonaland Central, Midlands, Mashonaland East, Mashonaland West and Harare Metropolitan. In this report Manicaland province recorded the highest number of cases with 26.66%. Mashonaland Central and Masvingo provinces were second with 25% and 23.33% respectively. Mashonaland West and Harare Metropolitan provinces recorded the least with 5% and 1.66% respectively. Heal Zimbabwe forecasts an increase in cases of human rights violations given that political parties have commenced campaigns.

The chart above illustrates the distribution of the implicated human rights perpetrators. A total of 104 human rights perpetrators (96 males and 8 females) were involved in committing the 60 human rights cases. The perpetrators fall under nine categories that include MDC leadership, ZANU PF leadership, traditional leaders, councillors, war veterans, retired soldiers, church leaders, youth officers and Central Intelligence Officers.

Heal Zimbabwe observed that for the first time MDC leaders recorded the highest number of perpetrators with 34% followed by ZANU PF leadership with 33.31%. In the previous reports ZANU PF leaders used to dominate in this category. Traditional leaders constituted 20% of the recorded 104 perpetrators. This is besides the fact that such conduct goes against Section 281 (2) of the constitution that prohibits them from engaging in partisan politics. Church leaders, youth officers and CIOs recorded the least with 1.1% each. The victims included opposition supporters, ZANU PF members, traditional leaders and ordinary community members.

5. Our Interventions

In a bid to mitigate human rights violations, Heal Zimbabwe has been working with independent Commissions such as Zimbabwe Human Rights Commission (ZHRC) and National Peace and Reconciliation Commission (NPRC). On several occasions, the organisation has facilitated for victims of human rights violations to report cases of human rights violations to these independent commissions and investigations have been carried out. The NPRC highlighted that it encourages members of the public to submit reports of human rights violations, but also stressed that they were also supposed to closely monitor if institutions such as the police were carrying out their role of enforcing the law without fear or favour in compliance with Section 219 of the constitution.

Heal Zimbabwe through its national peace campaign has since engaged perpetrators in areas where the organisation has noted an increase in human rights violations. Further to this, as part of its target advocacy initiative, the organisation through its community structures such as community peace clubs has initiated conflict mediation trainings spearheaded by Traditional leaders. The purpose of these trainings is to raise awareness on sustainable peacebuilding and to educate communities on how to pursue non-violent channels when resolving conflicts such as dialogue and mediation. With elections drawing close, the organisation will also roll out robust peace awareness campaigns under the ambit of its national peace campaign dubbed #13MillionVoicesFor Peace.

In Mvurwi, Heal Zimbabwe referred Takudzwa Madzamba to the Counselling Services Unit (CSU) for medical services after he was assaulted by ZANU PF supporters. The organization also facilitated for Madzamba to report the case at Mvurwi police station as well as the ZHRC. Heal Zimbabwe engaged Officer Muzinda who was handling the case and he indeed confirmed that a report about assault had been made, but highlighted that he had summoned the involved individuals at the police station on 20 June 2018 so as to attract more information. The investigating officer further highlighted that they are also on high alert to respond to cases of political violence as elections draw close.

The organization successfully engaged all perpetrators of human rights violations and emphasized the need for peaceful conduct and tolerance ahead of elections. Heal Zimbabwe also engaged other Traditional leaders and Councillors implicated in human rights violations from areas such as Gutu, Bikita, Buhera, Nyanga, Mt Darwin, Chimanimani and Mazarabani on the need to exercise tolerance and upholding peace. Generally, the Village heads highlighted that most of the directives came from the local ZANU PF leadership within their areas. Heal Zimbabwe implored the traditional leaders to uphold their constitutional duties as enshrined in Section 281 of the constitution.

6. Conclusion

Heal Zimbabwe through its National Peace campaign will continue to campaign aggressively on the need for citizens to uphold peace before, during and after the 2018 elections. The organization has sent all related cases to the ZEC and ZHRC for redress. The organization will continue to monitor human rights violations especially in political hotspots areas.
